Seventh day – Reflection – 2nd October –

Commitment of St.Luigi in the works of Charity

“Enjoy serving the Lord in his poor ones” was the continual message from St.Luigi as he committed himself to God and his people. His life reminds us that charity is the real element which characterises a life of commitment and activity. His only concern was to reach out to his brothers and sisters with the compassion and love of the heavenly father. He looked after every child “as the apple of his eye” His affectionate and tender love made every child feels important and wanted. He was ready to do everything and anything for their welfare and it is this deep sense of commitment which made him to become a beggar for their sake. He exhorted the sisters to be mothers teachers and shepherdess to the children entrusted to their care. His day would begin very early and would prolong through various activities fulfilling the needs of the house. His deep trust in the divine providence was coupled with strenuous work and utilizing all with his capacity and resources. This extraordinary combination of trust in the providence, on the one hand, and hard work from his part, on the other, made him an efficient instrument of the divine providence for the betterment of many.

Let us pray that we too may learn to combine trust in the providence with our hard work , and mingled with our genuine love and compassion we may reach out to many people in need.
